

Security Risk Response and Resilience

Security Risk Response and Resilience (SRRR) combines Talbot’s market leading Political Violence expertise with AIG’s global Crisis Solutions capabilities to provide an all-round insurance and consultancy product. Designed to respond to all facets of a major security concern SRRR provides insurance protection against political violence, acts of terrorism, strikes, riots, civil commotion and against attacks by malicious assailants. This is underpinned by leading crisis, security and trauma specialists to provide clients with elite levels of pre and post loss support.

SRRR provides our clients with cover for:

Malicious Assailant

Malicious Assailant covers incidents involving a lethal weapon (including vehicles) with the intent to cause harm to others. Our product provides affirmative cover, closing the gap left by conventional terrorism policies, as well as Casualty, workers compensation and other associated insurances – providing comprehensive coverage against the many ways in which losses can be incurred.

Strikes, Riots and Civil Commotion (SRCC)

SRCC cover protects organisations against property damage and business interruption losses caused by committed actions by a group of people to disturb the public peace for political purposes. Previous events triggering SRCC cover include: the Arab Spring protests across North Africa and the Middle East (2010), fuel price riots in Mexico (2017) and riots in Haiti (2018).

Political Violence

Political Violence insurance cover encapsulates war related perils including international and civil war, through to rebellion, coup d’etat or revolution, as well as strikes, riots, civil commotion, malicious damage and terrorism and sabotage. Political Violence covers the spectrum of an organisation’s war exposures to ensure there are no gaps in cover.

Sabotage and Terrorism

Our worldwide Sabotage and Terrorism product covers direct physical damage and business interruption from politically, religiously or ideologically motivated violent acts. The losses caused by these constant, unpredictable and hard to quantify threats can have significant impacts on a business’ bottom line and are often excluded from standard commercial insurance policies.

All underpinned by global crisis consultancy before, during and after an event

AIG’s in-house security consultancy and its worldwide security response partners bring together a wealth of global security expertise. We provide clients with consultancy and response services before during and after an insured event, from extensive loss prevention training and expert support to tackle the psychological implications of those affected by trauma, to full-blown on-site crisis management, communications and business continuity advice to minimise financial and reputational damage after an event.

The wealth of resources our SRRR product offers clients is as wide and varied as the exposures they face. For more details, visit talbot.aig.com
